

PRESS RELEASE

Help at last for home movers

It's a well known fact that moving house is a stressful event - from the minute the For Sale board goes up outside your house, to the minute you put the key in the lock of your new home. In fact, when the British public were questioned about which life event they found most stressful, moving home came top*. 44% found it drove them into a frenzy compared to 15% who identified changing jobs as their most stressful experience.

Helpiammoving.com is a unique free independent website, designed to take away some of the stresses that comes from moving house.

The site includes a free quotation system where movers fill in details of their relocation. This is forwarded to local removal companies to find the most suitable quote.

Helpiammoving.com is also packed full of useful hints, tips, checklists and advice on house moves, with everything from games to keep the children happy on moving day, to moving with fish.

"After all the complications of selling your house, the actual job of moving is often neglected and a big headache," says Andrew Scholey, Founder of Helpiammoving.com.

"We offer free, independent advice which points movers in the right direction, making the whole process of buying or selling a home as straight forward as possible."

Helpiammoving.com is the only website solely dedicated to moving house and does not combine selling, insurance, mortgages or property services, allowing it to concentrate and give accurate advice on only one topic, moving house.

Editor's notes:

Andrew Scholey started the website over 3 years ago. He is an ex-removal man with over 20 years experience in the trade.

Andrew developed the idea of helpiammoving.com as he wanted to help make the experience of moving less fraught. The site was developed around feedback from movers during Andrew's long time working in the industry.

Helpiammoving is not run by a Removal Company or Trade Association, and so is able to offer unbiased advice.

Helpiammoving has been featured on Radio 2 – and was voted best Website of the day. It has also been featured by Vanessa Feltz on her BBC London Radio Show, LWT, Times, Guardian, as well as Property Chain Kirsty Althorp and Channel 4.

Helpiammoving receives on average nearly 1million hits on its website each month.
